Autistic Parents and Parenting with George Watts

Wednesday 2nd December 2020, 7pm-8pm

Autistic self-advocate, mentor and speaker; diagnosed as an adult while doing a degree in Autism Studies, now doing an MA also in Autism Studies. My dissertation is looking at the relationship between autism acceptance and quality of life in autistic adults.

Mum of two young girls, one of whom is also autistic; Twitter enthusiast; dog lover, cat slave; living in rural Scotland. Interests include autism and mental health, autism advocacy and legislation, autistic parenting and making people laugh, probably in an autism-related way. I made a short film challenging autism stereotypes called "Talking In Pictures" I am also a mentor on this popular free online autism course.

Slightly obsessed with autism.

TITLE OF TALK

DATE AND TIME

Zaffy is a genuine specialist in wellbeing on both personal and professional fronts. With Zaffy, you're in safe hands.

Zaffy had struggled throughout his life with health, sensory, social and learning issues, and has put a lot of time and energy into learning the reasons why. Zaffy has learned how to manage his health by linking up the multiple layers between mind and body which hold our wellbeing. Zaffy says 'each diagnosis has played its part in finding the pieces to my puzzle. My aim now is to help others by raising awareness and understanding through sharing my experiences'.

Zaffy uses his art to give a visual representation to his experiences as well as openly discussing his personal journey. Zaffy combines this with knowledge he has gained through his multiple interests and studies. He has an engaging speaking style that is easy to listen to and has a way of incorporating analogies which helps connect the layers of health and well-being together.

Zaffy works with a major learning disability provider as a Practice Advisor, supporting teams to understand behavior and developing strategies and techniques to increase quality of life. Zaffy also offers private consultation with individuals, families and care and support providers.

Zaffy cares very deeply about making the world a better place through wellbeing and sharing his journey and experiences with others.
